Director of a Graduate Program

1 2

Definition

A Director of a graduate program is a faculty member with administrative responsibilities for graduate academic programs within the discipline and the primary representative of the discipline or professional program to which he/she belongs. He/she provides leadership in academic matters and is responsible to the Dean of Graduate Studies and Continuing Education. In accordance with University policies and procedures, the program Director functions to ensure the quality of instruction, curriculum and faculty development within the program.

Eligibility for Service

To be eligible to serve as Director an individual normally should: (a) be an associate or full professor, tenured or on tenure track; (b) possess the terminal degree appropriate to the discipline; (c) show evidence of leadership, scholarship, and collegiality; and (d) demonstrate understanding of and commitment to the mission and character of the University and graduate program. In the event that an insufficient number of candidates meet these criteria, other faculty within the discipline may be appointed.

Length of Appointment

The length of appointment for the position of the program director is normally three academic years, with reappointment at the discretion of the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Selection of the Director

In October of the third year of a Department's term, the Vice President for Academic Affairs will call for nominations of faculty to serve as the Program Director for the next three-year term. The program's full-time faculty vote constitutes a recommendation to the Vice President for Academic Affairs; the Vice President shall evaluate the recommendation and, if he or she approves, shall appoint the new Director. The same process would be used to nominate a Director when the current Director is unable to complete a three-year appointment. If after formal consultation with the program faculty, the VPAA determines that the Department should come from outside the University, the standard faculty recruitment process is to be followed.
