The Romance of Robert Burns

By JON TEMPLETON

In all the wide realm of literature there is nothing more unique or more original than this book. The trite saying, "There is nothing new under the sun" is here delightfully denied. This is NEW. The name of Robert Burns, though old, and familiar wherever human language finds expression, is, in this volume made more real, more life-like, than all the countless books that have been written about Scotland's sweetest Bard. This is the life story of Robert Burns, the heart story, around which circle the sweet and noble characters made famous by his immortal verse. Here, moving and acting like human beings, the reader will meet the real Highland Mary, whose sparkling eyes dwelt on the Bard sae kindly. Here he will know what it was that inspired the "My Mary, Dear, Departed Shade." Here he can understand the girl of whom Burns wrote:

"There's not a bonnie flower that blooms
On upland, heath or green,
There's not a bonnie bird that sings
But minds me o' my Jean."

Here he will more fully appreciate the noble Earl of Glencairn. Here he will see H'aley Willie as others saw him. Here he will warm toward the faithful Madge Magowan. Here he will see the difference between Tam O'Shanter and the pious sniffing who must do "ma duty." In this book he will meet with renewed pleasure, and with dearer reverence all of the old favorites, and will want to erect an enduring monument of bronze to commemorate the virtues of Tam O'Shanter's old mare, "Meg."

This book is now in press, printed on elegant paper, clear, large type, containing, with portrait of Robert Burns and one of the author, twenty-four beautiful drawings and views of Scottish scenes, The Bridge of Doon, The Winding Ayr, The Birthplace of Burns and others. The binding is in taste, substantial, elegant. The price of the book is $1.50, post-paid, and soon ready for delivery.

A Sunbeam in the Night

By CAROLUS BAULDER

This is a rare and most amusing story, full of satire, philosophy, and most interesting episodes. It is clean, clear and charming in style, easily understood, funny, serious, and full of thought. It is far ahead of Bellamy's "Looking Backward," inasmuch as it is entirely original. It will astonish, delight, instruct, and fill you with surprise.

It is for sale everywhere, in cloth binding, or sent postpaid for $1.00 by

Chickens Come Home to Roost

THE GREATEST NOVEL OF THE AGE

Eighth Edition (40th thousand). Beautifully illustrated. By L. B. Hilles, described in the New York Times as "A book without a single dull line, with a horse race far surpassing in vivid description and thrilling interest the famous chariot race in Ben-Hur."

Robert G. Ingersoll said: "The boldest and best of the year."

Hon. B. T. Wakeman says: "It is the greatest novel I have ever read."

W. L. Stone, author and critic, writes: "It is most admirable, beautiful and vivid in style. A great accession to American fiction."

Judge John Rooney, of the New York bar, says: "It is equal to the best masters, and the horse race is even better than the one in Ben-Hur."

Hon. M. L. Knight, of the Chicago bar, says: "This is the most realistic and remarkable book of the age. A greater book than Uncle Tom's Cabin. Written with the realism of Defoe, the grace of Addison and the pathos and gentle sweetness of Goldsmith."

More than five hundred letters have been received from delighted readers.

The book is on sale everywhere, or sent post-paid for $1.25—or 50 cents in paper.

LITERARY NOTES

"CHICKENS COME HOME TO ROOST"

S. R. Hall, writing of this book in The Free Lance, Fredericksburg, Va., says :—

Readers who delight in books with quaint titles will surely find one in a new novel of the season, which bears on its front cover the above familiar old maxim. Nor will its quaintness of title be the only feature in which lovers of good fiction will delight. Although its first appearance was in September last, it is already in its fifth edition and bids fair to have an immense sale.

Few writers outside of our Southern authors have taken the Old Dominion, with its days of chivalry and hospitality, as a warp on which to weave a tale of love and tragedy. One does not doubt, after reading this book, that the author has more than a superficial knowledge of the country around the historic Rappahannock, Fredericksburg and the battle field of Chancellorsville. One of the most praiseworthy features of the novel is its artistic and beautifully descriptive qualities. The time is that of the great civil strife and the interest of the story at the beginning clusters around the family of Phineas Strong, a Quaker, who had moved into Virginia just before that memorable period, and whose simple, peaceful and God-fearing life, makes him one of the strongest characters in the story. The hero is a little drummer boy in the Federal Army, who fought in the battle of Chancellorsville, and was taken from the side of his father's dead body at the close of that disastrous conflict, to live with the Strong's and to become acquainted with Phoebe Strong, the heroine. But to many readers the most thrilling part of the book is that of the trotting race at the County Fair, in which the hero and his pet mare—Dewey Iris, are the chief figures. The description of the race is truly the work of a master hand. In it the author has attempted something rarely, if ever, attempted by any other writer, the feat of bringing a climax into each of the three heats of a race. That he has succeeded needs no further evidence that the fact that the reader is held in almost breathless suspense from the time the necks of the speedy racers dash under the wire down to the tragical finish near the close of the third heat.

In spite of the intense interest which every reader of the book feels until the last "chicken comes home to roost," the pathetic and most beautiful sentiments of the story hover around the head of the gentle, pure-minded, broken-hearted Phoebe. The world condemned because it knew not, but the average reader will be inclined to add a flower to her lonely grave and believe that in the sight of Heaven she was always good and pure.

Mother Goose in New Dress

Rhymes and Jingles

Jingles and Rhymes

This is a large Quarto Book with thirty-two pages of Music and Original Drawings, of Mother Goose Rhymes, adapted for the Little Folks and especially for Kindergarten work. The Marches and Songs are sweet and simple, the music easy and most melodious. The children are delighted.

This book has been endorsed by the greatest women in the world, Her Majesty, the Queen of England, Mrs. President McKinley, and that most gentle and noble mother, Mrs. Grover Cleveland, all of whom have introduced it to their little friends.

Etta M. Wilson, Director of Kindergarten in Public School No. 43, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "We have been using 'Rhymes and Jingles' in our Kindergarten for the past month, and find it invaluable in our work. It indeed fills a long felt want in Kindergarten Songs and Music. I wish that every Kindergarten and Primary School in the world had it.

The work is beautifully printed on Deckle Edge paper, in striking Bronze Blue Cover, and for sale everywhere, or sent to any address, postpaid, for $1.00.

PERDIDA

A ROUND, UNVARNISHED TALE, TRUTH-FULLY DELIVERED

By FREDERICK W. PANGBORN

WHY IT SHOULD BE READ BY EVERYBODY:—

It is a bold, pathetic and intensely dramatic work.

It appeals to the quick sympathy of all men.

It speaks to the heart of American Christian womanhood.

It is an interesting story with a strong plot.

It is forcefully and passionately written.

It suggests questions that are seldom answered honestly.

It is a book that, once read, will never be forgotten.
