FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

February 1970

NEWPORT, R.I., Feb. 23 -- Ronald C. Brinn, Waltham, Mass., has been named vice president for development and public relations at Salve Regina College, it was announced today.

Announcement of Mr. Brinn's appointment to the newly-created post was made by Sister Mary Christopher O'Rourke, RSM, president of the Catholic women's college.

Mr. Brinn has been for the past five years director of college development and public relations at Newton (Mass.) College of the Sacred Heart. He will begin his duties at Salve Regina in March.

In his new position, Mr. Brinn will be responsible for the planning and implementation of programs in the areas of fund raising, college and community relations, and alumnae affairs.

Prior to his Newton College affiliation, Mr. Brinn served on the public relations staff at Brown University, Providence, and in the advertising department of the Linde Company, Union Carbide Corporation, New York City.

A native of Boston and a 1958 honor graduate of Tufts University, Mr. Brinn was for three years a Navy public information officer aboard the aircraft carriers INDEPENDENCE and RANDOLPH. Now a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve, he is executive officer of Public Affairs Company 1-1, Boston.
