FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

May 1970

Some 150 courses in 22 major fields, and a dozen workshops, institutes and other special programs will highlight this year's two-session summer school at Salve Regina College, Newport, R. I. .

One six-week session will begin on Monday, June 15, and the other on Monday, July 27. Complete information on registration, housing, and fees for both sessions is now available at the Division of Continuing Education on the College's Ochre Point Avenue campus (847-6650).

The day and evening offerings range from courses in "Ecology" and "Basic Pottery and Stoneware" to workshops in "Police-Community Relations" and "The Computer As A Research Instrument in Education and Psychology" to special programs in "Portuguese Studies" and the Christian Life Center-sponsored "Dimensions in Divinity."

Courses on introductory, intermediate and/or advanced levels will be offered in art, biology, chemistry, education, special education, English, finance, French, history, law enforcement, mathematics, music, nursing, philosophy, political science, Portuguese, psychology, religious studies, sociology, Spanish, speech, and theatre.

Workshops from two days to six weeks will focus on audio-visual methods in the teaching of French; varied musical approaches in the celebration of the Liturgy; and the neglected and/or special child and the community.

There will be institutes from three days to six weeks dealing with art therapy; marine biological sciences; psychomotor therapy; and the management of men.

Among the other featured programs scheduled for this summer at Salve Regina will be a reading clinic for school children in grades two through ten who need improved reading skills or remedial help with reading.
