FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

July 1970

Salve Regina College will open the second semester of its summer session Monday, July 27, with more than 75 courses in 20 major fields, as well as workshops, institutes, and other special programs.

Registration for the six-week session will continue through Saturday, July 18, in Ochre Court at the Ochre Point Avenue campus of the women's college.

Complete information on registration, housing, and fees is also available at the Division of Continuing Education. (847-6650)

The day and evening offerings include courses on the introductory, intermediate, and/or advanced levels in art, biology, chemistry, education, special education, English, finance, French, history, law enforcement, mathematics, music, nursing, philosophy, political science, Portuguese, psychology, sociology, Spanish, and speech.

There will also be a two-day workshop on the neglected and/or abused child and the community; a five-day institute in marine biology; and an eight-day reading clinic for school children, from the second to the tenth grades, who need improved reading skills or remedial help with reading.

Students with a high school education or its equivalent will be admitted without examination to any course in the summer term for which they are qualified. During the six-week term, a college student may earn up to 12 semester credits, providing he has received the approval of his faculty advisor and has arranged for the transfer of credit. Those students who wish to attend a course, workshop, or institute, but do not desire credit may register as auditors.
