FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

September 1970

Some 75 courses in 20 major fields will be offered this fall by the Division of Continuing Education at Salve Regina College, Newport, R. I.

According to Charles E. O'Loughlin, Dean of Continuing Education, day and evening courses on introductory, intermediate and/or advanced levels will be offered in art, biology, chemistry, education, special education, English, finance, French, history, law enforcement, mathematics, music, philosophy, political science, Portuguese, psychology, religious studies, sociology, social studies and Spanish.

Among the featured programs scheduled for the fall semester will be a 3-credit TV series on Ecology, presented by Salve Regina in conjunction with the Rhode Island State Agency for Elementary and Secondary Education (formerly the State Department of Education), on WSBE-TV, Channel 36. Designed as an introduction to the field of human ecology, the series will attempt to analyze contemporary human ecological problems, as well as survey some of the active programs dealing with their solution. Of particular interest to elementary and secondary school teachers, the series will emphasize application of ecological knowledge in curriculum development and community action.

Another highlight of the fall semester of Continuing Education will be a 15-session course on "American Policy and Strategy in Indochina." Taught by Dr. Waring Hopkins of the U.S. Naval War College, Newport, the course will evaluate American policies in Indochina from World War II to the present. Political and military aspects of the "Containment Policy" will be emphasized and prospects for American disengagement of the future of the area will be considered.

Students with a high school education or its equivalent may register for any course in Continuing Education for which they are qualified. Those students who wish to attend a course, but do not desire credit may register as auditors.

The Office of the Registrar in the College's Ochre Court administration building will be open Sept. 14-18 and Sept. 21-23 from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. for registration. A special evening registration period will be held Sept. 21-23 from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. For further information, contact the Division of Continuing Education at 847-6650, Ext. 62 or 63.
