

Salve Regina University

Digital Commons @ Salve Regina

Faculty Assembly Documents

Faculty and Staff

5-6-2005

AS Minutes 2005 05 06 Political Phil

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.salve.edu/fac_assembly

Recommended Citation

"AS Minutes 2005 05 06 Political Phil" (2005). Faculty Assembly Documents. 129.
https://digitalcommons.salve.edu/fac_assembly/129

Rights Statement

In Copyright - Educational Use Permitted. URI: <http://rightsstatements.org/vocab/InC-EDU/1.0/>

This Item is protected by copyright and/or related rights. You are free to use this Item in any way that is permitted by the copyright and related rights legislation that applies to your use. In addition, no permission is required from the rights-holder(s) for educational uses. For other uses, you need to obtain permission from the rights-holder(s).

April 20, 2005

To: The Faculty Assembly

From: Dr. Lance Carluccio
Director of the Ph.D. in Humanities Program

The following course title and description were developed by Dr. Jim Hersh as a result of recommendations from discussions at meetings of part-time and full-time Salve Regina University faculty who are assigned to teach 600-level Humanities courses. The intention is for this course to be offered beginning in the Fall 2005, replacing HUM 615 Social and Strategic Management.

Humanities 615

Political Philosophy and Technology

This course examines the role that technology plays in creating political systems that are just and fair. After looking at the origins of the Western liberal tradition in the political philosophy of Plato and Aristotle, we then trace a line of thinking through Locke, Jefferson, and Kant, and close with readings from the contemporary political philosopher John Rawls. Our final objective is to determine the effects particular technological advances have had on the evolution of Western political liberalism and on the adaptability of modern liberal democracy to the developing world.