THIS STORY HAS YOUR LOCAL ANGLE

The Salve Regina College Glee Club have sung three concerts in recent weeks on and off their Newport, R.I., campus.

The 45-voice chorus opened the season with a "mini-concert" during the College's ninth Father-Daughter Weekend, and then presented a joint concert with St. Michael's College, Winooski, Vt., and a "Service of Lessons and Carols" together with the choir at St. Mary's Church, Newport.

For their first three fall appearances, the Club's selections ranged from Sweelinck's "Hodie Christus Natus Est" to Simon and Garfunkel's "Bridge Over Troubled Waters" to a swinging rendition of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game."

The arrangement for the latter number was done by Glenn Giuttari, a Brown University graduate student in musicology, who directs the Salve Regina singers.
