FOR RELEASE

C. Edward O'Loughlin, Newport, dean of continuing education at Salve Regina College, has been named associate director of the Evening College at Elmira College, New York, it was announced today (May 17).

Mr. O'Loughlin, 34, who has directed Salve Regina's division of continuing education and the summer sessions since April of last year, will begin his new assignment in early July. At Elmira, he will be responsible for all undergraduate evening degree programs, as well as for the development of new courses and programs designed to meet the needs of the adult community.

A native Rhode Islander, Mr. O'Loughlin earned his baccalaureate degree at Providence College, and his master of arts degree in history at Brown University. Before joining the Salve Regina administration, he was assistant to the dean and director of the community center program for the University of Rhode Island's Extension Division.

Elmira, founded in 1853 as a college for women, is now co-educational, and enrolls some 1,300 students in the day school as well as 1,600 in the Evening College.

Mr. O'Loughlin, his wife, the former Catherine Thomson, and daughter, Kristin, will move to Chesmug County, N. Y., in June.

Mrs. O'Loughlin, a Pembroke College graduate, is the daughter of Dr. Paul van K. Thomson, academic vice president of Providence College, and Mrs. Thomson, East Greenwich.
