Reverse College Days At Salve Regina, Newport

Some 120 high school guidance counselors will be getting together with the admissions representatives of 21 Catholic colleges from throughout New England today, (4/5/72), at Salve Regina College, Newport.

Purpose of the gathering at the four year liberal arts college for women, is to share information on the newest programs, curricula and other developments on each college campus represented. This is the reverse (and in addition to) usual college recruitment methods, which involve visitations on the part of college recruiters to individual high schools or to special college days in the communities represented.

Better than 58 high schools will be participating in the program, from throughout R.I., Southeastern Mass. and Conn. The counselors will attend programs from 9:30 a. m., through Luncheon and a guided tour of Ochre Court, former Goelet estate and now administration building for Salve Regina.
