Summer 2015

Executive Director’s Note

Ruth S. Taylor
Newport Historical Society

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.salve.edu/newporthistory

Part of the History Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://digitalcommons.salve.edu/newporthistory/vol84/iss272/1

This Editorial is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Salve Regina. It has been accepted for inclusion in Newport History by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Salve Regina. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@salve.edu.
Establishing a medical center in Newport would have been a significant step in the town's history, providing a vital service to the community and beyond. The center would have served as a hub for medical care, education, and research, fostering a vibrant and dynamic culture of health and wellness.

The location of the center would be crucial. A prominent site could have attracted more patients and visitors from surrounding areas, enhancing the town's reputation as a medical destination. The center could have included facilities such as laboratories, operating rooms, and well-equipped clinics, offering state-of-the-art services to the public.

To ensure the success of the center, it was essential to have a dedicated team of professionals, including doctors, nurses, and support staff. Their expertise would have been crucial in delivering high-quality care and maintaining the center's reputation.

The construction of such a center would have required significant planning and funding. However, the potential benefits would have been substantial, making it a worthwhile investment for the town and its residents.