August, 1894.

John R. Johnson.

Dear Sir,

I am quite satisfied with the greenhouse designs as now submitted, and as soon as you get them in shape to forward to Mr. Yale please do so, without any further delay.

I hope Mr. Sacket will decide to construct the entire range forthwith, (though we can of course get through the winter comfortably with the portions you have suggested) as the houses could ~~be~~ worked so admirably together, it seems a pity not to run it as a whole, as it should be, and show up for the very best in Newport.

Few gentlemen realize the positive value of such houses, in enabling one to turn out the finest sort of stock of all kinds for general use.

With them you can take the lead and keep it, otherwise we must be satisfied with more moderate results.

Very truly,

James H. Bowditch.

P.S. Please impress upon Mr. Yale, as I have done, the absolute need of quick decisions. We have got left once already, and greenhouses cannot be built in a day or a month, and
