ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Salve Regina College's Concert Choir, under the direction of internationally known liturgical composer C. Alexander Peloquin, will perform in a joint concert aimed at raising money for the poor and celebrating the birth of Martin Luther on November 10 at 8:00 p.m. at Cathedral of SS Peter and Paul in Providence.

The benefit performance is in commemoration of the 500th anniversary of the birth of the 16th century reformer whose protests against the sale of indulgences led to the Protestant Reformation and a major split in the Christian Church.

Choirs from Boston College and Barrington College will join Salve's Concert Choir in performing pieces drawn entirely from the works by the 18th century German Lutheran composer Johann Sebastian Bach. Bach's Magnificat will be sung in Latin with Bishop Gelineau narrating verse between stanzas. The Concert Choir will perform such Lutheran Chorales as "Jesus Joy of Man's Desiring," "Oh Sacred Head" and "How Bright Appears the Morning Star."

The money raised from the upcoming concert will be donated to the Interfaith Community Dire Emergency Fund which was created five years ago under Jewish, Protestant and Catholic auspices to aid low income families.

Tickets for the concert range from $5.00 to $25.00 and can be obtained from the Rhode Island State Council of Churches, the Cathedral of SS Peter and Paul rectory and other local churches.

The Salve Concert Choir is comprised of forty women and is under the permanent direction of Brother James Loxham.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Robert Clary of "Hogan's Heroes" fame recently spoke to a packed house in O'Hare Auditorium on his experiences as a Holocaust survivor.

Touring the country as a volunteer speaker for the Simon Wiesenthal Center in Los Angeles, Clary related his ordeal as a Nazi prisoner for 31 months during World War II.

Born in Poland, the 16th child of Jewish parents, Clary and his family moved to pre-war France. In 1942, he and thirteen members of his family were arrested by the Nazis. Clary, alone, survived. He was selected by an SS guard as a slave laborer.

The Salve audience listened intently as Clary told of a winter death march in 1945 which claimed the lives of more than 2,000 prisoners. He spoke of human mistreatment that staggers the imagination.

Clary stated, "I arrived at a camp where they lined us up, told us to roll up our left sleeves and then tattooed a number on our arms. Not only were we herded like cattle, but we were branded like cattle. We acted like cattle. We were sub-human."

With 60% of today's population born after World War II, Clary fears that apathy might someday create the dangerous environment for another holocaust. The Wiesenthal Center and its associates are dedicated to educating people about the Holocaust so that history may not repeat itself in such a heinous and tragic manner.

Clary concluded that "Apathy is the worst thing that can happen in the modern world."

Thanks to the many faculty members who turned out last Friday for the photography session in O'Hare. For those of you who couldn't make it, the Public Relations Office would appreciate copies of any black and white photos you may have of yourself which could be used for publication. Otherwise, we will take individual photos for our files as the need arises.
