EXTRACTION SOCIETY VOLUNTEER TO SPEAK AT SALVE REGINA COLLEGE

The nature of the challenge and the advantages of service in the home missions will be discussed at Salve Regina College on Wednesday, November 3, by Mr. Larry Benzie, a volunteer of the Extension Society, as he presents the need for college graduates to work with the Church.

Mr. Benzie will be visiting the College to outline the need for, and the activities of, 385 volunteers working in 19 states—throughout the south, west, southwest, and midwest—plus Puerto Rico. These volunteers work as parish workers in migrant camps, Appalachia, Indian reservations, on college campuses, and as teachers, nurses, and hospital personnel.

The speaker is a graduate of Siena College in up-state New York and is on leave of absence from IBM to promote the work of the Extension Society whose headquarters is in Chicago, Illinois.
