SALVE NURSING DIRECTOR RESIGNS

Sister Mary Augustine San Souci, R.S.M.,

Director of Nursing at Salve Regina College for the past twenty years, has resigned from that position college authorities have announced, but will continue to serve in the nursing program at the college. The nursing division at Salve Regina was inaugurated in 1948 and currently enrolls approximately 160 students in the baccalaureate program preparing beginning practitioners in professional nursing. Sister Mary Augustine is President of the R.I. State Nurses Association and is active in nursing association activities both locally and on the national scene.

Sister Mary Kathleen O'Connell, who is completing her doctoral studies at Columbia University, has been named director of the Division of Nursing.
