Sr. Lois Eveleth

R. S. M. 's at SRC

There are sixty-two full-time faculty, and fifty percent of them are Sisters of Mercy. This figure does not include either part-time faculty or staff members.

Among the entire college community, in the four convents on campus, six of the nine provinces are represented. Those who are working at SRC this year include the following:

- S. M. Callista Fontaine (Omaha) associate professor of chemistry
- S. Solina Hicks (Chicago) lecturer in art
- S. Constance Kozel (Scranton) associate professor of philosophy
- S. Michaeline Lewandowski (Detroit) lecturer in art
- S. Lucille McKillop (Chicago) professor of mathematics and president of the college
- S. M. Giles Peresich (St. Louis) assistant professor of bibliography

There are two new sister students, both of whom live at Moore Hall. Sister Judith McNamara, R. S. M., who comes from Portland, Maine, is a registered nurse who plans to complete her baccalaureate education in SRC's nursing division. Sister Margaret Mary Wharton, R. S. M., comes from Agana, Guam. She has transferred from the University of Guam, and is matriculated as a mathematics major.

SRC Alumnae

Those sisters who are alumnae are invited to submit news items about themselves and their goings-on to the college newsletter, Report from Newport.

Address any items of interest to the public relations office, noting year of graduation.

Graduate Study

SRC has begun its first graduate program, offering an M. A. in Human Development. There are five areas of specialization: human development, teaching, teaching of reading, special education, and religious studies.

An attractive poster (23 x 17) which announces and describes the new program in detail is available free of charge.

If you want a poster, write to:
