mational sessions on academics, residency programs and college planning. They are also given the opportunity to meet with administrators and faculty and attend academic advising sessions with their children.

The two-day program will be run six times this summer with more than 800 parents and students expected to attend.

This fall, approximately 365 freshmen are expected to attend classes beginning September 7. These students were selected from more than 1,000 applicants to Salve Regina. This represents a seven percent increase over last year's applications. Total enrollment in the fall will remain at 2,000 students, the level established by the College several years ago.
