SPECTACLE OF TOLERATION

LEARNING FROM THE LIVELY EXPERIMENT

CONFERENCE

"No person shall be any wise molested...

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM, CULTURAL CONFLICT,
AND THE MORAL ROLE OF THE STATE

OCTOBER 3 – 6, 2013
NEWPORT AND PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND

What is religious toleration? What are its functions, effects, and limits in society?
How has it manifested (or not) in human history?

The 1663 Rhode Island Charter stipulated that no person "shall be any wise molested, punished, disquieted, or called in question, for any differences in opinions in matters of religion..." This charter famously guiding the "lively experiment" that both reflected and shaped religious and political developments in the early modern world and has continued to influence global conversations about the role of toleration and religious freedom. The 350th anniversary of this charter provides a timely point of entry into the consideration of a far larger set of questions about religious freedom in historical and present-day contexts.

Organized by the Newport Historical Society, the Rhode Island Historical Society, the Pell Center for International Relations and Public Policy, Salve Regina University, the George Washington Institute for Religious Freedom, the John Carter Brown Library, and Brown University to mark the 350th anniversary of the 1663 Rhode Island Charter.
