SYMPOSIUM LECTURE

"Technology and the Enterprises of Culture," second in a year-long series of five lectures exploring the nature and impact of technology in developed nations, will be presented Thursday, November 18, at 7 p.m. It will be held in O'Hare Academic Center; it is free and open to the public.

Dr. William P. Haas, president of North Adams State College, North Adams, Mass., will speak on the paradox of being liberated from human drudgery by technological advancements, only to face an overabundance of leisure time, which, when misused, can become destructive.

This year's lecture series is the focus of Salve's annual Peace and Justice Symposium. The Symposium is offered through the philosophy department's Atwood Lecture Series. The evening of the lecture all classes on campus end at 6:30 p.m. in order to give faculty and students the opportunity to attend the lecture.

DANCE MARATHON TO BE ON TV

Channel 6 will be covering the Dance Marathon Friday evening. Watch for our 2nd Annual Dance Marathon on the 11 p.m. news, live from Ochre Court, Friday, November 12, 1982.
