AMERICAN RED CROSS VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Rhode Island law requires that drivers transporting children three years of age and younger must protect the child with an approved child passenger restraint system. American Red Cross volunteers in conjunction with the Newport Hospital have established a program to train parents and grandparents in the proper use of car safety seats. The Kids in Safety Seats Program (K.I.S.S.) holds training sessions each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10:45 - 11:45 a.m. at Newport Hospital. Seats are then made available at a minimal rental fee for those parents and grandparents that have completed the training session.

Mary Simpson, Red Cross volunteer chairman of K.I.S.S., states that the program is growing rapidly and volunteers are desperately needed to assist in training.

For more information regarding K.I.S.S. call 846-8100. An hour of your time could save a child.
