GRADUATE STUDENT PLANS TO BICYCLE CROSS-COUNTRY FOR LUNG ASSOCIATION

Ronald DiFabbio, a graduate student in the Holistic Counseling Program, plans to bike-ride cross-country this summer in a fundraiser for the American Lung Association. The two-month trip will begin in Seattle, Washington, on June 6, and cyclers will pedal approximately 70 miles a day until they reach Atlantic City, New Jersey. Riders will traverse some 3,400 miles.

To qualify as an entrant, riders must collect $5,000 in donations and pledges, and DiFabbio has been busy with efforts to gather those pledges. He ran into an unexpected snag last week when his bike was stolen, but he will invest in a new bike if he can raise all the needed funds.

Anyone interested in making a pledge should contact Ron DiFabbio at 847-5341.

CANDLELIGHT MARCH FOR SUICIDE AWARENESS

In a state where someone dies by suicide every four days on average, The Samaritans will sponsor a one-mile candlelight "Suicide Awareness March" to the Rhode Island State House the evening of Tuesday, May 9, as part of National Suicide Prevention Week, May 7 -13.

Students, faculty and staff are invited to join the march, which will begin at 10 p.m. from The Samaritans' Center at 2 Magee Street on Providence's East Side.

The Samaritans offers 24-hour hotline service handling some 30,000 annual calls from people in crisis, plus a Safe Place support group and extensive community outreach programs.

For more information, contact Nancy Heroux at The Samaritans, 272-4243.

A NEW APPROACH TO LANGUAGE INTERPRETATION AND COMMUNICATION SKILLS

If you're looking for a new way to get your ideas across, you may want to investigate Neuro-Linguistic Programming (NLP), a method of learning about how we process language and how that processing effects the way we communicate. Linda C. Strahan, an educator and ordained minister, will present "Introduction to NLP: A Consumer's Guide to its Magic" on three consecutive Saturdays, beginning May 27 and again on July 8. Workshops, which last two hours each, take place at the Quaker Hill Professional Center in Portsmouth and cost $20.00 per session or $60.00 for the entire workshop.

This introductory course will outline the concepts behind NLP, a program which helps you learn how you gave language its meaning and how that meaning effects feelings and, in turn, your body's physiological response to its environment. Proponents of the method assert that you can improve your communication skills by learning how you process language symbols. "NLP can help people overcome feelings of helplessness and powerlessness," Strahan said.

PAID SUMMER INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE

The Newport Historical Society has three openings for paid summer internships for students interested in further education in fields that relate to work in a historical institution. Interns will divide their time between the Society and the Wanton-Lyman-Hazard House, one of two historic properties owned and operated by the Newport Historical Society. While at the Society, the interns will work on a research project based on the Wanton-Lyman-Hazard House.

The program begins with an intensive two-week training program, June 6 - 16. The House opens June 17 and stays open through August 31.

The internship program offers participants the practical, hands-on field experience valued by graduate schools and future employers. Applicants to the program must have course work in one or more of the following areas: American History, American Studies, Art History with a concentration in the decorative arts, Architectural History, Conservation, Preservation or Museum Studies.

Please submit a resume with a cover letter and three references by May 19, to (Ms.) Elliott Caldwell, Curator.

For further information, contact Elliott Caldwell at 846-0813.

JUMP FOR HEART FUNDS TALLIED

Salve Regina College students raised $461 for the American Heart Association in the Jump For Heart program held recently at the Newport YMCA. Over 30 students participated in the event.

Event coordinators were sophomores Michelle Stavros, Ingrid Meiser, Anndra Sulick, Vanessa Barneschi, Karen Karcher, and freshmen Christine Scully, Bridget Mulligan, Judithe Pawloski, Lisa D'Agostino and Denise Foley.

James Lynch, Director of Intramurals, and Geraldine DiCamillo, Coordinator of Intramurals and a tennis coach at the College, served as faculty advisors. Graduate students Kimberly Campbell and Stacey Deveney, also helped organize the event.

FACULTY NEWS

Dr. Mary Louise Greeley, Associate Professor of Biology and Biomedical Sciences, has been elected secretary of the Board of Rhode Island Schools of Medical Technology (BRISMeT).

BRISMeT is a consortium consisting of pathologists, hospital administrators, medical technology program directors, and college directors of medical technology programs. It administers medical technology (B.S. level) education programs in the State of Rhode Island.

Maureen Lareau, Associate Professor of Nursing, had an article published in the March issue of The Consultant Pharmacist. "Alternative Care of Alzheimer Residents in Long-term Care Facilities" explores ways to structure an environment for Alzheimer victims so that they require less medication. Lareau co-authored the article with E. Paul Larrat, Jean Anderson and Janis L. McKernan-Markoff, her partners in a study called "The Alzheimer Demonstration Project."

Stephanie Muri, Associate Professor of Social Work, represented Salve Regina College at a Career Colloquium sponsored by the Human Development Program at Boston College. Speakers addressed career possibilities for students who graduate with a degree in Human Development, and the fields represented were psychology, management, health care and social work.
